10 Year Article & Feature Index Vol. 1-Vol. 10, Complete

LOTS OF MAGAZINES GO STRAIGHT from the mailbox to the trash can, with only a brief stopover on the coffee table. But Keyboard isn't like other magazines. Many readers, we've found, like to keep their old issues on file, because the kind of information we publish doesn't go out of date. Want to know what synthesizer the Thompson Twins use to get their great bass sound? Who the other musicians were in the Art Tatum trio? That's what we're here for.

But if you've been keeping your Keyboards for a few years, you've got a pretty hefty stack of magazines by now, and finding one particular article can get to be a real chore. So last December, for the first time, we published a complete index of the feature articles we had published. Unfortunately, in a typical display of the negative serendipity that strikes our print run whenever we do something truly monumental, the Dec. '83 issue, with its cover story on the conflict between studio synthesizer players and the Musicians Union, was completely sold out almost before it hit the newsstands. (This is the same fate that struck the first Wendy Carlos cover story, an issue that had sixteen pages of original variations on "Good King Wenceslas" by members of our Advisory Board.) We had no choice but to run the whole index again this year, updated to include all our 1984 features. Rest assured, we've already requested several thousand extra copies of this issue for the warehouse, so if you aren't reading this now you can order it later. For the next couple of Decembers, if all goes well, we'll only have to publish an index for a single year. Next month we'll be running a complete index of our workshop columns and Keyboard Reports, and we're planning to keep that one in print as well.

In the artist section below you'll find listings of feature story interviews, transcribed solos, obituaries, articles written for us by artists, and appearances in Leonard Feather's Piano Giants Of Jazz column. The features are listed by title/topic, except for Craig Anderton's Electronic Projects, which are grouped together, and the various music transcriptions and original pieces written for us, which are listed under Musical Arrangements.

Many of our back issues are still available, so if you see an article you'd like to read, turn to the Back Issue ad on page 98. In the case of issues that are no longer available, we can make photocopies of individual articles for you at a cost of $3 per article, plus $2 postage and handling for each order. And every issue of Keyboard is available on microfilm from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, MI 48106.
